BABY IS KING.

A rose color'd cradle, where nestled within
Soft cambric and flannel—lie pounds seventeen;
'Tis the throne of a tyrant: that pink little thing
Is an autocrat august—for Baby is King!

Good, solemn grandfather dares hardly to speak
Or walk, lest the sleeper should hear his boots creak;
Grandma is a martyr in habits and cap,
Which the monarch unsettles, as well as her nap.

Papa—wise and mighty—just home to the house,
Grows meek on the threshold, and moves like a mouse
To stare at the bundle, then outward he goes
Like an elephant trying to walk on its toes.

The queen of the ball-room throws loyally down
Before him the roses she wore in her crown,
And sings little love songs of whom she loves best;
He cries, when she stops, like a merciless elf.

He flings right and left his saucy fat feet,
And then, the next moment, expects to be kissed;
He demands people's watches to batter about,
And meets a refusal with struggle and shout.

Then, failing to conquer, with passionate cry
He quivers his lip, keeps a tear in his eye,
And so wins the battle—this wise little thing!
He knows, the world over, that Baby is King!

THE JOSH BILLINGS PAPERS.

SUM NATIAL HISTORY.

The ALLIGATOR is not a natiff of Nu Eugland; he is too useless a critter to be born there.

He belongs down South, and resides in the same swamp that the copperhead duz.

He lives upon raw pig, and don't hesitate tew take them whole, if thare don't happen tew be a smaller one handy.

He iz also fond of a little negro once in a while by way of a relish.

They are amphibous, and several other kinds of cuss tew plenty to men shun.

What on earth they are good for I don't seem tew know, unless it iz to watch for pigs.

Their hides can be tanned into leather, but they are az hard to skin az a beech tree iz; and the leather when tanned, iz just about as limber az a cooking stove. But one pair of boots made out ov alligator will last az long az a man's name duz; the only way tew wear them out iz tew heave them away.

Alligator meat iz not luscious. If you ask for it at the first-klass hotels they alwus tell yu "that they are just out." It tastes z' a soul th k the beef of the mule would who had been worked forty years in a brick yard, and then been struck by lightning to get rid ov him.

When the alligator's mouth iz wide open, his head iz just about the centre ov his boddy; but they have one virtew I come very near forgitting—they make a very still noise, altho they hav more jaw than enny critter I know ov.

These are some ov the heavyest falts I have been able tew gather about the alligator.

The alligator seems to be a seckond edition ov the krokadile, made out ov what was left.

I think the krokadile usually lays egg, when they want some krokadiles, but I don't know whether I think the alligator duz or don't, but if they do, and I ever find the nest, and the old feller ain't on the nest, I shouldn't hesitate tew hatch out the eggs myself—with a klub.

This iz all I kno at present about the alligator.

* * * * * * *

THE REN iz the smallest thing surrounded with feathers except the humming bird.

He iz about the size ov a horse chesnut.

He iz of a dark brown color, and bilds hiz nest in not holes, out ov little bits ov stix.

He iz az gritty az a mud pie, and will fight a hen turkey.

Rens are little pirates; I have seen them drive a blue-bird out ov his house, and set up business on hiz stock in traid.

They lay an egg about the size ov a marrow-fat p, and hatch out at least a half a dozen children at a setting.

A young ren iz the funniest little package I ever see done up; they ain't much bigger, and look verry like a small-sized semicolon.

Rens are long-lived, but if they should live tew be az old az Methuseler, they wouldn't be az big az a butter nutt.

They live on the bug and worm family, and spend their winter south.

They are not profitable to eat—I would as soon dress a bumble bee, and one ren pot-pie would use up the whole breed.

* * * * * * *

THE CROW.—Next to the monkey, the crow has the most dewitry to spare. They are born very wild, but kan be tamed az easy az the goat kan, but a tame crow iz aktually wuss than a sore thumb.

If thare iz anything about the house that they kant get into, it iz because the thing aint big enuf. I had rather watch a distrikt skool than one tame crow. Crows live on what they can steal, and they will steal enny thing that aint tied down.

They are fond of meat vittles, and are the first tew hold an inquest over a departed horse, or a still sheep. They are a fine bird tew hunt, but a hard one tew kill; they kan see you 2 miles first, and will smell a gun right through the side ov a mountain.

They are not songstirs, altho they hav a good voice to cultivate, but what they do sing, they seem to understand thoroughly; long praktiss has made them perfekt.

The crow iz a tuff bird, and kan stand the heat like a blacksmith, and the cold like a stun wall.

They bild their nests among a tree, and lay twice, and both eggs would hatch out, if they waz laid in a snow bank—thare aint no such thing as stopping a young crow.

Crows are very lengthy. I beleave they live always: I never knu one to die a natral deth; and dont beleave they kno how.

They are alwus thin in flesh, and are like an injun rubber shew, poor inside and out.

They are not considered fine eating, altho I have read somewhare ov biled crow, but still I never heard of the same man haukering for some biled crow 2 times.

This essa on the crow is copied from natur and if it iz true, I aint to blame for it; natur made the crow, I didn't; if I had I would have made her more honest and not quite so tuff.

* * * * * * *

HENS leads me to remark, in the fust place, that thus far they are a success.

They are domestic and occasionally are tuff.

This iz owing to their not being biled often enuff in their younger daze; but the hen ain't to blame for this.

Biled hens is universally respeckted.

Thare iz a grate deal ov originality tew in the hen—exactly how much I kant tell, historians fight so much about it. Sum say Knower had hens with him in the ark, and sum say he didn't. So it goes, which and tuther.

I kant tell yu which was born fust, the hen or the egg; sumtimes I think the egg waz—and sumtimes I think I don't kno, and I kant tell now which is right, for the life ov me.

Laying eggs iz the hen's best grip.

A hen that kant lay eggs—iz laid out.

One egg iz konsidered a fair daze work for a hen. I have heard ov their doing better, but I don't want a hen ov mine tew dew it; it iz apt to hurt their constitution and by-laws, and thus impare their futer worth.

The poet says, beautifully:

"Sumboddy haz stole our old blew hen,
I wish they'd let her bee;
She used tew lay 2 eggs a day,
And Sundays she layd 3."

This sounds trew enuff for poetry, but I will bet 75 thousand dollars that it never took place.

This bet stands open till the 17th day of next November, at half-past twelve o'clock.

* * * * * * *

THE BUMBLE BEE iz one ov natur's sekrets.

They probably hav a destiny tew fill, and are probably necessary, if a fellow only knew how.

They live apart from the rest of mankind, in little circles numbering about 75 or 80 souls.

They are born about haying time, and are different from enny bug I know ov; they are the biggest whoa they are fust born. They resembel sum men in this respekt.

Their principal business iz making poor honey, but they don't make enny to sell.

Boys sometimes rob them out ov a whole summer's work; but thare iz one thing about a bumble bee that boys alwus watch dredful close, and that is their helm.

I had not rather hav awl the bumble bee honey thare iz between here and the city ov Jerusalem, than tew hav a bumbell bee hit me with his helm when he cums round suddin.

They are different from other war vessels; the helm always minds the bumble bee.

DEATH.—We have never read anything more beautiful than the following from the pen of George D. Prentice:

There is but a breath of air and a beat of the heart betwixt this world and the next. And in the brief interval of painful and awful suspense, while we feel that death is present with us, that we are powerless, and he all powerful, and the faint pulsation here is but the prelude of endless life hereafter, we feel in the midst of the stunning calamity about to befall us, that the earth has no compensating good to mitigate the severity of our loss. But there is no grief without some beneficient provision to soften its intenseness. When the good and lovely, the memory of their good deeds, like the moonbeams on the stormy sea, lights up our darkened heart and lends to the surrounding gloom a beauty so sad, so sweet, that we would not, if we could, dispel the darkness that environs it.

IN the store of Mr. Wickloff, at Metamora, Illinois, a lamp reflector in the window sent the concentrated rays of the sun into a broom near by with such effect as to set the broom, and thence the store, on fire.

THE BABY'S JOURNAL.

BY ETHAL LYNN.

I'm here, and if this is what they call the world, I don't think much of it. It's a very flannelly world, and smells of paregoric awfully. It's a dreadful light world too, and makes me blink, I tell you. And I don't know what to do with my hands; I think I'll dig my fists in my eyes. No, I won't. I'll scrabble at the corner of my blanket and chew it up, and then I'll holler; whatever happens I'll holler. And the more paregoric they give me the louder I'll yell. That old nurse puts the spoon in the corner of my mouth in a very uneasy way, and keeps tasting my milk herself all the while. She spilled snuff in it last night and when I hollered, she trotted me. That comes of being a two day's old baby. Never mind when I'm a man I'll pay her back good. There's a pin sticking in me now, and if I say a word about it I'll be trotted or fed, and I would rather have catnip tea. I'll tell you who I am. I found out to-day. I heard folks say, "Hush, don't wake up Emeline's baby." That's me. I'm "Emeline's baby," and I suppose that pretty, white faced woman over on the pillow is Emeline.

No, I was mistaken; for a chap came in here just now, and wanted to see Bob's baby, and looked at me, and said "I was a funny little toad, and looked just like Bob." He smelt of cigars, and I'm not used to them. I wonder who else I belong to. Yes there's another one—that's "Ganma," Emeline told me, and then she took me up and held me against her soft cheek and said, "It was Ganma's baby, so it was." I declare I don't know who I belong to; but I'll holler, and may be I'll find out.

There comes Snuffy with catnip tea. The idea of giving babies catnip tea when they are crying for information! I'm going to sleep. I wonder if I don't look pretty red in the face? I feel so. I wonder why my hands won't go where I want them to. I wonder what Snuffy has in that big black bottle, and why she don't give Ganma's baby some.

Here's Bob; he's one of the people I belong to, you know. He kisses me and scratches me with his mouth—I don't wear a mustach myself. I like Ganma. She treats me like a gentleman, and parts my hair on the side; Snuffy parts it in the middle.

II.

I'm a year old, and I've got a name. I'm Joe; and uncle Joe gave me a silver cup this morning, but they won't let me have it to bang on the table. Grandma would give it to me in a minute, and I think some day when I catch her alone, I'll get it yet.

Cousin Lizzie is staying here. She is a nice girl, only she won't let me pull her hair; I think she might—such long, soft, yellow curls. She won't let Uncle Joe touch a curl either. He just lifted one up the other day, and she drew it away and bent over her head and kissed me ever so much, and Uncle Joe walked away.

I guess he was only trying to see if it was the same color as his mustache.

Oh! I've got the prettiest mamma: her eyes shine so bright, and her little hands are so soft; I declare I am proud of her.

Snuffy don't live here now; Annie takes care of me, and takes me out and we go to the park, and gentlemen with caps and a great many buttons on their coats talk to me a great deal, ask Annie how old I am and where I live. They are very polite to me; but I don't think it is quite right of Annie to keep my cap over my eyes so much, it is rather tedious.

I've had lots of toothache, and I've raised a few teeth; they don't come out as Ganma's do though. My pretty mamma tells me to show my toofies, and then I have to grin for everybody. I bit Bob's finger yesterday, but he didn't seem to mind it.

III.

I've got short clothes on. Cousin Lizzie is teaching me to dance. Uncle Joe helps her too. When I am through my lessons, she catches me up and kisses me and then Uncle Joe kisses me too, right on the same spot. Isn't that queer?

Cousin Lizzie is going home soon; I'm sorry; so's Uncle Joe. I heard him tell her so, and then she stopped to tie my sleeve-ribbon, and grew very red in the face about it. That's funny too.

I've got a little sister. She looks pretty well for a girl. I remember when I did not look any better. I think I'll be good to her; but she must understand at first that she must mind her elder brother.

Cousin Lizzie has a new bright ring on her finger; I guess Uncle Joe gave it to her. She don't scold when he pulls her curls now.

Oh! ain't I glad I've got a Ganma? for Cousin Lizzie forgets me now sometimes and mamma Emeline is white and still. But Ganma don't forget—not she; and she isn't so taken up with the girl-baby that she can't remember a fellow who used to be A No. 1. She says my nose is out of joint, but it don't feel broken.

I don't want to be ugly, but I do hate to see the new baby in my place; and I hear them tell her that she is the dearest little dot that ever lived.

They used to tell me just so. And I don't like to see my dear mamma so very still, with her eyes shut.

IV.

I knew it was a sorrowful world when I came, and that is why I cried.

I've tried to-day to wake dear mamma, and I cannot. She will not speak to me, or move, or open her bright eyes. She does not even turn when the baby cries. Both her little hands are laid upon her breast, and are full of flowers. And Cousin Lizzie and Ganma are all in black frocks, and I've black ribbons on. And Bob sits by her with his head in his hands; and Uncle Joe cries as he stands beside them both, and lays his hand on his shoulder, and says, "God help brother." And all the while the sun is shining in the streets, and the people go by as they always do. The canary might know this was no time to sing—when dear mamma will never wake again.

She held me in her arms last night, and kissed me, and said, "Good-by, little Joe." They tell me she has gone to heaven; but it is no comfort to me. I don't know where heaven is, or how to get there. I looked up at the stars, but I liked the shine of mamma's eyes better. And I wanted her here. I must be good to the baby, and I mean to be; whatever happens, I'm going to stand by that baby.

POWER OF IMAGINATION.

Billy Smith is a carriage painter, and a genius in his way. One day while counterfeiting nature with a brush, his mind chanced to run on the subject of rotten eggs, and forthwith one of those interesting objects appeared on the board. It was represented as broken, and was so natural that an observer might fancy it caused a disagreeable odor. The picture remained there for some time—all who had occasion to go that way not caring to disturb a thing so forbidding to the delicate senses of the nasal protuberance. One day Squire M—— saw it and applied his fingers to his nose. Billy saw him, and explained to him that it was merely paint. At first he would hardly believe it, but finally convinced, he offered Billy ten dollars to paint a similar one on his door step. The squire was something of a wag, and wished to see the effect produced on the ladies and gentlemen who had been invited to a party at his house that evening. Billy received the ten dollars, and promised to have the painting ready in time.

Evening arrived, and so did the ladies and gentlemen; and as each in succession passed over Billy's painting they elevated their feet and skirts, and, applying their perfumed handkerchiefs to their noses, wondered if the squire was aware of the presence of that frightful thing on his door-step.

The party progressed, and the rotten egg was the subject of much remark.—Squire M—— heard and felt jolly over the success of his practical joke. When everybody was chatting at the table after supper, and not a few of them about the 'apparition' at the door, the squire arose, and uttering a preliminary 'hem!' said:

'I suppose you all saw that on my door step, didn't you?'

Everybody assented, some of the women uttered a little scream, and all of that sex fanned themselves vigorously. The squire resumed:

'I had that placed there to illustrate the power of imagination, as I'll show you, if you'll adjourn to the door.'

All went.

'Now,' said the squire, taking out his snowy pocket handkerchief, 'you will see that this is not what you supposed it was, but merely a painting.'

And he pressed the handkerchief on the 'illustrated' spot, then raised it suddenly to his nose.

'By Jupiter!' he exclaimed, 'it' a rotten egg, after all!'

Billy had taken the ten dollars and broken a bona fide rotten egg on the squire's door step.

CATS.—Some practical joker in Cincinnati advertised in one of the city papers that a certain merchant—giving his name and place of business—was in want of a cat, and that for a good one, ten dollars would be paid. The next morning the store was literally besieged by urchins with their arms full of—black cats, white cats, speckled cats, Thomas cats, ancient cats, juvenile cats, and every urchin demanding his ten dollars. Later in the day a distressed looking gentleman, covered with cats' hairs, presented himself at the office of the advertising paper, and with extreme indignation announced that he never owned a cat, never wanted a cat and devoutly hoped never again to see a cat. The publishers sympathized, and declared it was a cats-astrophe.

OILY PEOPLE.—Particularly smooth and oily people bear watching. Beneath the tongue which is as glass, and the smile which is as the rose, there may lurk that which is of a quite different nature. Excess is always suspicious, and in speech and matter especially so. If you are plied with words that have an unwonted sweetness, whether from man or woman, and you are pressed with uncommon solicitude, just put yourself on the defensive, until you comprehend the situation.

Up jumps the devil, and looks very solemn, And sets two lines to fill this column.

[From the St. Paul Press, Feb. 2]

An Adventurous Trip—Overland from Alaska to St. Paul.

We had the pleasure of meeting yesterday a gentleman who has just reached the city, having been engaged since last August in making the perilous and adventurous overland trip from our new Russian American possessions.

The gentleman in question was one of the early employees of the Overland Telegraph Company, whose lines run up through Russian America, thence across to Russia and St. Petersburg, and had been in the employ of the company that has since carried on the work. The company having suspended operations for a time, he came down to the Southern part of "Russian America," and going up "Portland Canal," the salt water inlet which forms its southern boundary, and ascending Nass River (given on some maps as Simpson River), started in August last on his overland trip.

By making a portage he was able to cross by means of a line of small lakes from the head waters of Simpson River to Fort McLeod, on the head waters of the Peace River proper; following this river, which flows along a beautiful valley through the Rocky Mountains, he hoped on to his canoe with his Indian guide to Devegan House. Here he went out of his way to visit Smoky River, so called from the country being clouded with smoke from the burning peaks, the soil being a mass of earth mingled with asphaltum or petroleum.

Continuing his journey, sometimes in a canoe, sometimes on a horse, and sometimes on foot, he crossed to Lesser Slave Lake, up the stream at its northerly end, and thence by portage across to the Saskatchewan, and down it to the Carlton House. Here the water courses were left altogether, and our adventurous traveler continued his journey on horseback and in dog sleds to Fort Garry on the Red River, thence with dog sleds which carry the mail, to Petabina and Fort Abercrombie, and thence to this city, whence he intends to proceed to New York, where he will shortly take the steamer for California.

One not accustomed to that mode of life can hardly imagine the difficulties, privations and dangers attending such a journey through a country, a large portion of which was inhabited only by the Indians, and dependent upon them for supplies of food for the traveler and guide, which were often obtained with the greatest difficulty.

Our adventurer was for a considerable length of time in the central portion of Russian America, or Alaska, having aided in clearing the route for the telegraph line, which starting from the terminus of other lines which run up from California, through Oregon and British Columbia to the southern boundary of our new possessions, thence has penetrated well up toward the interior. He is well posted as to its climate, the nature of the country and its capabilities, being a shrewd observer, and having a large fund of general knowledge.

It will be seen that on some of the late maps the Youcaan River is represented as flowing into the Arctic Ocean, while on others this is but a branch of a large river which flows into the Altantic near Behring's Straits. The latter is correct, this river, which is called the Kitchpitch (we don't claim to give the Russian spelling), being navigable for a thousand miles through the interior of this country.

The country contains plenty of timber, principally pine, hemlock and cedar, and also large quantities of coal, which the Indians burn in their lodges, it being similar to Pennsylvania coal. The land all along down the southern strip is well timbered, and has abundant streams which furnish the best of water powers. The lumber trade with California and Oregon seems destined to be an important one, as well as across to Asia, as it was necessary to ship immense quantities of telegraph poles to the Pacific coast to supply the Asiatic end of the line.

Some portions of the country are dotted with numerous lakes and occasional marshes; others are richly supplied with minerals, which have heretofore not been worked—for two reasons, one being the difficulty of access, and the other that all other precious metals found, until the recent purchase, fell to the royal treasury.

Gardens are common, and fine vegetables are raised. The mometrical observations have been regularly kept for four years at Fort Youcon, on the Youcon River, about midway between the Pacific and Arctic Oceans, showing a temperature about the same as at Quebec or Montreal. The codfish near the island, along the coast, are unsurpassed, while the finest furs are wonderfully plenty and cheap, being bought for a trifle from the Indians in the interior.

Many and conflicting statements have already been published in regard to Alaska, which makes the description of one whose acquaintance with the country is the result of recent and personal observation, of special interest. We give his statements as they were furnished to us, withholding his name at his request, his position, and the business connected with his present trips rendering this desirable.

A PERSON was boasting that he was sprung from a high family.

"Yes," said a bystander, "I have seen some of h same family so high that their feet could not touch the ground."

DECENCY.

Surely the respectable editor of the Johnstown Tribune was not "at home" in his apparent editorial approval of a leading article in his paper of last week under the caption of "Brick Pomroy." We do not exchange with the La Crosse Democrat, Mr. Pomroy's paper, but must say that of all articles attributed to him, (many of them rough enough, God knows,) we have never seen one teeming with such coarse abuse, and relieved by so little wit, as the article which the Tribune has chosen to grace, or disgrace, its columns with. We hope our friend does not intend to out-Brick the Brick himself.

THE JOHNSTOWN TRIBUNE.

Having been taken to task by the above journal for an item in reference to the larceny of some sheep, belonging to a lady in Florida, we resorted upon it in an article published some three or four weeks ago.

The editor of the Tribune, instead of replying in his usual respectful manner and in his next issue, waits two or three weeks, and until, as he admits, he had increased his dyspepsia by attempting to digest the speech of Hon. D J. Morrell. Then, when he has rendered himself cranky, critical and crusty enough, he puts himself to the trouble of "again looking over" the Freeman article. We regret that, instead of "looking over" it, he did not overlook it, for he has given us a whole mortal column on Grammar, Poetry, Politics and Negro. He excepts to us all around and in every possible manner.

1. Grammar. The first complaint is that we have damaged his English by a quotation. We did not misquote—the bad English is between the Tribune, our compositor, and the devil, and it is not very important which of the three is at fault. It is a typical trick, and the editor is not responsible.

But ingenious has been spelled with a U and not with an I. Such things will happen with types, and are the "small beer" of criticism. U and I, Mr. Tribune, should have no difficulty on that score. Besides, we have never "writ" a book, as Covode would say.

2. Then we incorrectly quoted some radical poetry. We quoted from memory and may have quoted incorrectly. Fortunately, any misquotation of radical writing, either prose or poetry, is an improvement. Besides, we are not a poet, nor the author of a Book of Poetry.

3. For Politics see Negro.

4. Negro. Upon this dark subject the Tribune dilates. It goes off in a fissue of laudation of the wisdom of the Rump and the loyalty of the negroes. In short, it does everything but answer the plain and simple interrogatory put by the Freeman: "Is the negro fit to govern the sovereign States of the South?"

The Tribune does not deny, for a moment, the total unfitness of the Southern negroes for voting, but sets down the whole white population of the South as being "desperately wicked." Indeed, from the Tribune's stand-point, we do not wonder at the radical efforts to prevent a restoration of the Union, if the negroes are all too ignorant and the whites too wicked to govern themselves. It is no wonder that Radical Banks would be willing to "let them slide," or that Radical Greeley would allow the Southern States to "go in peace."

This obvious hatred towards the white population south of Mason's and Dixon's line, and love for the negro, seeks to shield itself under the delusion that the whites were all rebels—the negroes all loyal. The Tribune knows better than this. It knows full well that the negro, so far as he had mind to be anything, was a rebel wherever his master was, and that from the beginning of the rebellion the sustenance of the Southern army, the digging of the ditches for their defence—almost everything excepting their operations in the field—were the labor of the negro. It knows well, too, that during the most trying time of the conflict, no emeute of the slaves, no servile insurrection, ever occurred to weaken the forces of the rebellion. It was only when our armies occupied the Southern ground—when the negroes were within our lines and were fed by our rations—that they became an element in the struggle.

To call these creatures "loyal," in any patriotic sense, is an utter perversion of terms. As well might you call the Southern horses and mules, captured from the rebels and employed for the Union, "loyal."

And now, they have been free for some three years, and what have they done for themselves or their country? They have not even fed or clothed themselves; but the government, through the aid of its "bureau," has been compelled to keep them in existence. All that they seem fit for, even according to Radicalism itself, is the right to control the destinies of the South.

The Tribune reasons in a vicious circle. The whites are traitors, therefore the negroes should vote. The man votes wrong, therefore the monkey should vote, is, in effect, the argument of the Tribune. And the ill-concealed blasphemy which closes the Tribune article, that the ultimate negro supremacy over the whites, to which we are hastening, will demonstrate that "God rules and not Beelzebub," will be repudiated by all who desire that the destinies of our beloved country may remain in the future, as it has been in the past, a White Man's Government.

THE APPOINTMENT OF CATHOLIC BISHOPS.—The nominations for the new Catholic Episcopal Sees, made at the late Plenary Council, held in this city last spring, Archbishop Spalding presiding, were sent to Rome for confirmation by the Sovereign Pontiff. On Thursday the official letters announcing the confirmation were received by the Most Rev. Archbishop Spalding. There were fourteen nominations confirmed, and the same number of new Sees created in the United States, the rapid increase of the Catholic faithful throughout the country necessitating such action. Among those raised to the dignity of the episcopacy, it will be gratifying to his many friends in this city, and throughout the State to know, is Rev. James Gibbons, formerly pastor of St. Bridget's Church, Canton, and more recently one of the Secretaries to the Archbishop, who has been named to the See of North Carolina. Rev. Dr. Becker, of Richmond, Va., is confirmed as Bishop of Wilmington, Delaware, whilst Rev. Dr. O'Hara, Vicar-General of Philadelphia, is appointed Bishop of the new See of Scranton, Pa.—Balt. Sun, Saturday.

GRANT AND THE PRESIDENT.—Since our last edition, President Johnson has reiterated his charges against General Grant, with the testimony of five of the Cabinet officers confirming his statement. Grant's reply is a virtual confession of his guilt. He makes no attempt to contradict the President in that part of his indictment which accuses him of gross breach of pledged faith as a man and a member of the Executive Council. He only undertakes to deny the imputation of official insubordination. In that, even, he is very weak and unsatisfactory. On the simple basis of legal rules of evidence, Grant is convicted of shameful personal and official perfidy. But beyond those rules, and in strict conformity with the principles of belief which govern the judgment of all mankind wherever truth is to be ascertained by proof, we must say that Grant is decidely placed in the unpleasant category either of a liar by intention, or a liar by weak equivocation and reticence. He and his friends may take whichever horn of the dilemma they please. Our verdict is, that Grant is not to be trusted.—Sunday Mercury.

MORE SOUTHERN TREASON.—Sergeant Bates, carrying the United States flag, reached Montgomery, Ala., on the 17th. He was met by a large number of citizens, and carriages decorated with United States flags, with a band of music. Three thousand people turned out to hear the reception speeches and to welcome him. The old flag was enthusiastically cheered, and hundreds of ladies, from windows, balconies, and verandahs on the principal streets, waved their handkerchiefs to him as he marched along. He was escorted to one of the leading hotels, and is the guest of the city as long as he remains. All the speakers and marchals of the day were Confederate soldiers.

—The elections of 1868, so far, show that the ball so gloriously started last year, continues to roll. Only a few days ago the "first gun" came from Columbia, Pa., where the Rads. have ruled for a dozen years. A few days later, and the Democratic victories of Binghampton, Ogdensburg, and other towns in New York, and on Friday last, Reading, which last year gave a Radical majority of twenty, now elects Heister M. Nagle, (Democrat) Auditor, by a majority of three hundred and thirty-six.

—The Radical country press print Grant's letters but reject those of the President. One of them frankly says: "We do not print the President's letters impugning the General's motives and discrediting his veracity, because, first, they are very long, and, second, none of our readers would believe them." Happy readers! When ignorance is bliss, 'tis folly to be wise, —It is said that the murderers of Casey, one of Robinson's witnesses, were under arrest before the passage of the Senate resolution authorizing the Governor to offer a reward of $2,000 for the arrest of the murderers. Such a statement was made in the Senate before the resolution passed, but, perhaps, some "loyal" fellows' pockets need replenishing.

—The New Haven Register tells of one of the best mechanics in that city, who cannot obtain work at any price—and his case is not an exception—while his family for a month have been living on one meal a day. His color is white, otherwise he might go South and draw his rations from the Bureau.

—The Cincinnati Gazette says that "General Grant does not go out of his way to write or talk." Whereupon Prentice retorts that, "He may not, when he writes, go out of his way, but he goes out of the ways of truth and rectitude."

Gen. Grant as a Gay Deceiver.

"Mack," the Washington correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial, has had another interview with the President, and writes as follows concerning the Johnson-Grant affair:

Mr. Johnson referred to that part of General Grant's correspondence in which the General asks him to reduce to writing the order given to him verbally, to disregard any order received from Stanton, unless he knew it to emanate from the Executive. "Here," said he, "General Grant asserts that I had given him such a verbal order. I never did anything of the kind. It was he himself who first suggested that I could take such a course as to reduce Stanton to a mere clerk, and it was this suggestion from him, and not any verbal order from me, that first brought the subject up in that light.

At this point the President produced a letter from General Sherman, dated Saturday evening, January 18. Sherman says that it was the intention of himself and Grant to call on Stanton, on the following Monday, to request him, for the good of the country, to resign the office of Secretary of War; but that he learns that Grant must go to Richmond, and he to Annapolis, so that they can't call on Stanton on Monday, but will do so at some other time, and insist that he shall resign. Then Gen. Sherman goes on to say that if Stanton won't resign it will be time enough to look to "ulterior considerations."

"Now," said the President, "these 'ulterior considerations' were nothing else than the suggestions of Grant himself that Stanton should be treated as a mere clerk, and confined strictly to the execution of the duties imposed upon him by the letter of the law. And yet, having suggested this and urged it upon me, he writes me a letter asking me to reduce my 'verbal order' to writing. It was his own 'verbal order,' not mine. Yet he makes it appear from his letter that the first intimation came from me, and that he never said a word about it until I spoke of it. That's a fair specimen of the way he has been acting all along. This whole matter is not the first or the only time he has played that part. It's only one of a great many instances in which he has grossly deceived me. I got a dispatch one day from Georgia, telling me that Meade and Jenkins had been in consultation, and that it was probable that Meade would remove Jenkins I sent for General Grant, and he come over. I showed him the dispatch and told him I would not like Jenkins to be removed until I could hear something more about the matter. He assured me that he would see to it that Jenkins was not removed. I thought this was enough; but judge of my surprise when the next day I learned that Jenkins was removed. I don't believe Grant interfered at all, though he distinctly promised me he would. That's the kind of game he has been playing all along.

GENERAL GRANT ON A "WHITE MAN'S GOVERNMENT."

Just here a little question of veracity occurred to my mind, which I thought it well enough to settle. It was this: Some time in the early part of the winter a paragraph appeared in the Commercial's Washington correspondence to the effect that Colonel Hillyer, formerly of General Grant's staff, had told a member of the Judiciary Committee that he once was present at a conversation between General Grant and the President, in which the former took strong ground in favor of a white man's government and against negro suffrage, saying that this Government was made for white men, and none other should have a voice in it—and striking his fist on an adjacent table to show that he meant what he said. When this paragraph appeared it was extensively copied, and about as extensively denied, especially by that large class of newspapers and "Grant men" who, having no means of ascertaining whether it was true or false, felt all the more sure it was false, and denounced it as one of "Mack's" malicious fabrications.

I called the President's attention to this subject—asked him if he remembered any such conversation with Grant, and if so whether he remembered Grant's remark that this is a white man's government. He promptly replied that he did. He couldn't repeat Grant's words exactly, but the substance of them was what I had stated, and they were strongly against negro suffrage, which, about that time, it was proposed to introduce into the District of Columbia. Among other things Grant said was that the negroes didn't know enough to vote, and that they would vote just as their employers wanted them to. He illustrated by saying that he had a number of negro servants in his house, and that to let them vote would be simply to give him (Grant) so many additional votes, for they would vote just as he told them. He was quite vehement at the time in his denunciations of the Radical policy of negro suffrage.

The above, I think, settles the question of veracity as to Grant being a white man's government man. It is pretty well authenticated now.

—Some years ago, in the western part of Massachusetts, a youth fell in love with a young woman, and her friends opposing, eloped with her. They were pursued and overtaken at a hotel, when they begged a final interview alone, and then, as he asserted, mutually agreed to commit suicide. Her courage failed her, however, and she called upon him, as he says, to do the deed for her. He then cut her throat and his own. She died, he recovered, was tried at Lenox and convicted of murder, but was saved from the gallows by a commutation of his sentence to imprisonment for life. Six years have elapsed and now he has just died in the State Prison at Charleston.

—The story about Mrs. Lincoln's insanity, it is now said, comes from persons who are fearful of having their honesty and patriotism damaged by the book which she is supposed to be getting ready for the press.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

—The Rev. Father B. Smiddinck, of Chippeway Falls, Wisconsin, has suffered the amputation of a finger, which was frozen while he was sitting in the confessional.

—Two young women, who were watching the body of a supposed dead child in Aberdeen, Miss., were somewhat startled when the youngster sat up and requested something to eat.

—Governor Geary has granted a full pardon to William Meeser, editor of the Sunday Mercury, convicted of libel on Willian B. Mann, District Attorney of Philadelphia.

—By direction of the President, Secretary Seward had taken measures to secure the ablest counsel in the United States to go to England and defend the American citizens who are under arrest for complicity in the Fenian movement.

—The destitution and suffering among the working classes in almost every Northern State has never been so bad in the memory of man as at present. The country is traversed in every direction by mechanics in search of work.

—One of the most celebrated actresses in Paris, M'lle Thuiller, is about to take the veil at the convent of the Carmelites, and Madame Arnould Plessy is likely to follow her example. It appears that Father Hyacinthe, the celebrated Lent preacher, effected these conversions.

—In Howard county, Missouri, on Saturday, a son of Mr. Harry Dickerson, nine yeare old, attempted to release a hog which had got fastened in a gate, when a number of other hogs attacked the boy and mangled and bruised him so badly that he died the next day.

—They have a new way of granting divorces in Rhode Island. The minister who tied the knot tore up the marriage certificate, and pronounced the parties free. He did so at the demand of the parents of the bride and groom, who were quite too young to take the marriage vow.

—A Pensacola paper says the woods in that vicinity are filled with robins, who are driven by the cold blasts of a northern clime for refuge in a milder climate. Huntsmen are having fine sport in shooting them, and robin pie is a very common dish on the table of the poor white as well as the aristocratic freedman.

—A little girl in Norwich, Conn., who had received various little knicknacks from her mates, thought it was her duty the other day to reciprocate the favors. She accordingly provided herself with a box of cathartic pills and distributed them among her associates, creating thereby a decided sensation among the pupi's.

—James P. Thomas, a barber, and Miss Antoinette Rudger, both colored, were married in St. Vincent's Church, St. Louis, on Wednesday. The ceremony occupied two hours and a half, and was imposing. The bride has $400,000. The husband has nearly the same amount. He presented the bride a check for $10,000 as a wedding gift. The bridal veil cost $750, and the bride wore earrings costing $5,000. Rev. Thomas Burke performed the ceremony.

—T. P. Pinkham, seventy-one years of age, died suddenly in Lafayette, Indiana, last week. He was in good health till about half an hour before his death, when he went down stairs and remarked: "I am going home; in half an hour—in thirty minutes—I shall be a corpse." He quietly proceeded to give directions about his business, and, commending his soul to his Maker, expired in exactly thirty-four minutes. His relatives wanted to go for a doctor, but he said, "It is no use; I shall go hence in half an hour."

THE FREEMAN.

THURSDAY, : : : FEB. 13, 1868.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

EDITORIALITIES, LOCAL AND GENERAL.—

Our Greensburg correspondent is informed that the Freeman office is not for sale.

"The Elevation of the Teacher's Profession" has been received and will appear in our next issue.

Our very "promising" friend MacShane has "gone back" on us again. As Hal said of Falstaff, "we could better spare a better man."

Our friend ——, in Huntingdon county, has our thanks. Should like much to meet you in your pleasant Burg, and call with you upon our mutual friend, "Rye," senior.

The Democratic voters of Ebensburg are requested to meet at the Court House this (Wednesday) evening, for the purpose of nominating a Borough ticket to be supported at the election on Friday.

In Jenner township, one of the most Radical spots in the grossly Radical county of Somerset, says the Democrat, were lately married Solomon Boyer (white) to widow M'Kelvey, (colored,) and David Deetz (colored) to Polly Thomas (white.)

The Tyrone Herald says that Mr. Sample Anderson has discovered what is said to be a rich gold mine near that place. The jewelers can pronounce it nothing else. Nitric acid produces no visible effect on the metal. So pile in, ye gold worshippers, to the new Eldorado.

The city charter was adopted in Altoona, on Saturday last, by a majority of 235.—That portion of Logan township which made a "dead set" against the city at previous elections, was "left out in the cold" on this occasion, and hence the majority if not the success of the movement. How are you, city?

There is a great want felt in this community just now for tenant houses. We have learned of several families who know not where they are to find a roof to shelter them when moving time comes. Would it not be a paying investment for some of our monied men to erect suitable tenements to meet this growing want?

Persons requiring the services of a good painter may rest assured that our friend, Richard Rowan, of Altoona, is fully competent to execute work in the best style and at the lowest prices. We say it, without fear of contradiction, that he is one of the most competent mechanics in the State. See his card and then see him if you want a tip-top job.

Mr. James M. Riffle has leased the "Mansion House," his well known hotel stand at the Summit, to Mr. John H. Herbert, of Coalmont, Huntingdon county. Mr. H. will take possession the latter part of next month. Mr. Riffle will offer at public vendue, on Monday, March 23d, a large lot of personal property pertaining to said hotel. See advertisement and handbills.

Patrick Duggan, who was so seriously injured and his wife killed by the recent accident on the Pennsylvania Railroad at Mill Creek, died on Wednesday night from his injuries. Mr. and Mrs. Duggan were newly married, and were on their way to California at the time the accident occurred. The death of this unfortunate couple excites the sympathies of a large circle of friends.

We notice by the Altoona Tribune that the Red Lion Hotel in that place, Mr. P. Murphy, proprietor, has been finished and licensed, and is now open for guests. Mr. Murphy fully understands how to "keep a hotel," and we know of no man in that goodly borough more worthy of success. We commend the "Red Lion" and its landlord to the patronage of all persons visiting Altoona.

The dwelling house of Mr. John Evans, near Ridgesburg, Bedford county, was consumed by fire, on the 4th inst., and his two little children perished in the flames. Both parents were absent from the house (the mother at a near neighbor's,) when the fire broke out, and when the latter reached the scene of destruction it was impossible to rescue the little innocents. It was difficult to keep her from rushing into the flames.

Sheriff McKeage, of Blair county, lodged in the Penitentiary, on Tuesday of last week, the following convicts: Washington Lett, convicted of rape on Mrs. L. Wilt, sentenced to an imprisonment of eight years; Edward Simms, the ungrateful Englishman, who shared the hospitality of old Mr. Barkley, watchman on the Pennsylvania Railroad, and then robbed him of his watch while at prayer, sentenced to four years imprisonment; John Williams, larceny, one year and three months' imprisonment.

The card of our young Cambria friend, Mr. A. C. Dibert, appears in our columns to-day, and we not only direct the attention of all our mercantile readers to the announcement he makes, but heartily commend him to their most liberal patronage. We know Abe to be entirely worthy of confidence and encouragement, and also know that there is no more reliable and fair dealing firm in the boot and shoe trade in Philadelphia than the one he represents. None of our friends can do better with any salesman in the business than they can with Mr. Dibert.

DEATH OF L. S. CANTWELL, ESQ.—This brave soldier and true gentleman died at Kittanning, Pa., on Sunday, the 9th inst., and his remains were interred in the Catholic cemetery at Blairsville on the Tuesday following. Mr. Cantwell was a lawyer by profession, and commanded by his ability and professional acumen a most lucrative practice. At the commencement of the rebellion, however, he deserted the Bar and raised a company, of which he was elected Captain, and joined the 8th Pa. Reserves, serving with the most distinguished bravery throughout the greater part of the war, and only returning to civil life when impaired health rendered him unfit for service as a soldier. After retiring from the army he again resumed the practice of his profession in his former home.

We knew the deceased long and intimately. He combined a high order of talent, and a most persuasive eloquence, with those rare social gifts which endear the possessor to society. Kind, generous and forgiving, he leaves a host of mourning friends—not a single enemy. May he rest in peace!

FIRE.—On Saturday last the dwelling house of Mr. James Clevinger, on Laurel Hill, in Jackson township, took fire, and before aid could be procured, was consumed with all it contained. The accident occurred from a stove pipe passing through the roof. This deplorable disaster has left Mr. C. and his family in exceedingly destitute circumstances, and their condition strongly appeals to the charitable instincts of the human heart.

FALLING METEORS.—A friend informs us that while standing on one of the streets of Carrolltown, a few evenings since, he distinctly saw several brilliant meteors fall to the ground in his immediate vicinity. Other persons present also witnessed the phenomena, which continued for several minutes, and excited no little surprise and trepidation for the time being.

LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.

St. Valentine's Day—Stabbing Affray—Larceny—Burglary—The Castigator of the "Old Man" Heard From—The Hull Murder Trial—Closing of Public Schools—Exhibition—Left Town—A Curiosity—Municipal Elections, &c., &c.

JOHNSTOWN, FEB. 17, 1868.

Dear Freeman—Friday last was the day on which the feathered songsters are popularly supposed to choose their mates, after having previously done the usual amount of "billing and cooing;" and in connection with the occasion it is the invariable custom of newspapers, in making their comments, to give a few bread hints to their bachelor friends to pront by the example of the birds, and forthwith proceed to a choice of some fair one to sew on buttons and perform the other little etceteras which in our day and generation is supposed to be the natural sphere of woman. With all due respect for the sage advice gratuitously offered on the annual recurrence of the day, I feel rather disposed to enter my humble protest against anything of the kind, and would most respectfully suggest that if the birds feel inclined to do their sparking and mating at a time when the thermometer ranges in the neighborhood of zero, why let them do it—it's "their own funeral"—but as for me, I would vastly prefer the dreamy autumnal evenings in which to do the preparatory soft soldering, and the first icy breath of winter for popping the question and calmly subsiding into a realization of the oft repeated injunction that "it is not good for man to be alone." This day is also dedicated to the sending of tender missives or coarse caricatures, as the case may be, to the object of your love or dislike, and although the custom has sadly degenerated, there are still a great many who take advantage of the license allowed, and make their friends or enemies the recipients of beautiful sentiments or disagreeable caricatures. It is a matter of much regret that the practice is not confined to its legitimate purpose of love making and the offensive custom growing out of it discontinued.

A serious stabbing affray occurred at Conemaugh on Friday morning last, in which a man named Moore, a resident of that place, received several severe stabs from a pen-knife in the hands of a young man named Henry Roberts. From what I can learn it appears that Moore had been quarreling with another party during the early part of the evening, and in this quarrel Roberts finally became involved. It is alleged that at this juncture Moore went to the "Round House"—a building used for housing and cleaning engines—and procuring a hammer, returned and struck Roberts on the shoulder; the latter then drew a large pen-knife and made several lunges at Moore, cutting him twice on the breast and once on the back. The gashes, although severe, will not necessarily prove dangerous. Roberts had a hearing the same day, and was committed for assault and battery with intent to kill. He then instituted a cross suit against Moore for the same offense. A hearing in the latter case will be had to-day.

A gay and festive young chap named McGowan, who resides in Cambria borough, went to Pittsburgh recently, and about the time he thought of returning, came to the conclusion that he needed a watch and suit of clothes; and being of a covetous disposition, he found that a fellow boarder had the very articles he wanted. The watch and clothes were appropriated, and McG. came on his way rejoicing, but a Nemesis in the shape of a detective officer was soon on his track, and nabbed him on Friday evening in a saloon in Cambria borough. The aggrieved individual, whose time and dry goods were so surreptitiously spirited away, was on hands to prove property, and had no difficulty whatever in recognizing his vest and pants, in which his late fellow lodger was at the time "sporting." The bracelets were attached to McG.'s wrists, and he was taken to Pittsburgh—booked, no doubt for a passage across the river.

The house of Mr. C. Suppes was entered one night last week, by some burglarious individual, and three pocket-books abstracted from the pockets respectively of Mr. and Mrs. C. and a servant girl in their employ. The thief doubtless thought he was making quite a haul, but the contents of the combined pocket-books only amounted to five dollars and eighty cents.

The house of Mr. Unverzagt was also entered a few nights since, but it is supposed the burglars were frightened off, as nothing had been taken.

The young man whom I noticed last week as having been indulging in a little rencontre with his father, and injuring him to such an extent as to induce the old man to have him bound over for assault and battery, has been effecting a change of base, and has succeeded in getting up a little by-play which gives a rather livelier aspect to the position of affairs. He has returned no less than seven shebeen shops for selling on Sunday, &c., and among the number is the "tavern" of his own pater familias. The parties were all bound over to Court.

A large number of our most prominent citizens are attending the trial, at Greensburg, of Hull, who killed Parker, the conductor of the Accommodation Train, a short time ago. They were subpœnaed for the purpose of breaking a portion of the evidence given by a witness from this place, for the defence, and whose testimony is, I believe discredited.

The public schools of this town will close in two weeks from to-day, and it is the design of the teachers to give a general exhibition on the following Thursday.

The new school house in the 3d Ward is now completed, and will be ready for occupancy as soon as the desks are located.

Capt. James H. Gageby took his departure last week to rejoin his command, which is stationed some two hundred miles south of Santa Fe, New Mexico. The Captain has hosts of friends in this locality, who unite in wishing him a safe journey and a pleasant time generally.

Mr. L. Furlong the popular landlord of the Union House, at Conemaugh Station, has on exhibition a mechanical curiosity in the shape of a pair of shoes which measure about 16 inches in length, and are large in proportion, and which are just a neat fit for a gentleman in that neighborhood who must be a lineal descendant of "Big Foot."

Our Municipal elections take place on Friday, and there are quite a number of persons whose ambition runs as high as Burgess, or Councilmen. Not wishing to prove a false prophet I will not attempt to prognosticate.

SKU BAL,

ALTOONA CITY, Feb. 17, 1868.

Friend Mac—There is no telling what a day may bring forth. On Saturday I made a brief visit to the mountain. I left the borough of Altoona at 8.40 A. M., and arrived on my return in the city of Altoona at 9 P. M. Our population was some eight or nine thousand when I left in the morning—when I returned in the evening it had increased an hundred fold.

When I think what now we is,
And what we used to was,
I think we've thrown ourselves away
Without sufficient cause.

In hopes that it may convey to your mind a faint idea of what our city now is, I enclose a letter received from a very intelligent gentleman, in which he details his experiences and impressions in a most vivid manner. I submit the epistle without comment, as the writer is fully competent to tell his own story. Yours, &c., T. I. M.

"Altoona city!" shouted the conductor at one end of the car. "Altoona city!" yelled two brakemen and three water carriers at the other end. We seized our baggage and jumped from the car. We noticed that all the other passengers did likewise. Everybody stopped at Altoona. What a mass of people were about the station house and platform! What miles of Railroad cars were strung out in all directions! We became bewildered. Wondered if there could be two Chicagoes, and if we had got into the wrong car and been landed at one of them. But no! the conductor shouted Altoona city. There was no mistake, so we soon found our way home and rested until the following morning. In the morning we procured the services of a friend, and went forth to take a look at the city. There were omnibuses and drays, and milk wagons in the streets everywhere. We passed by whole blocks of four story salesrooms and warehouses, but saw no person that we knew. We met six policemen with stars on their coats and ugly looking sticks in their hands. We also met a colored boy with a bell in his hand, crying out, "Lost Child!" "Lost Child!"—were stopped thirteen times by as many Jew dealers in ready-made clothing, and invited to "step in and buy something." We saw two fights and heard fourteen organ grinders. Also, saw several strangely dressed people on the side walks, and asked our friend why they dressed so queerly. He told us that they were Chinese, Japanese and Hottentots, who resided in the city. Heard our friend say, "good morning Andy" to a gentleman who was riding by in an open carriage. Asked what "Andy" and were informed that it was the Ex-Governor of the State—that the Executive Mansion was on Thirteenth street. Got tired of the noise and confusion, and requested our friend to stop somewhere for the night. The next morning we made some further inquiries about the city of Altoona. Found that the Great Central Railroad from sunrise to sunset passes through the centre of the city, and that all other Railroads and Plank roads centre at this point.

Altoona city is the Railroad centre of the whole country. Nearly all the plank roads and stone roads in the Union terminate here, including one from Wopsanomick. We have been informed that very important changes have taken place (politically) during our absence. The Capitol of the State has been moved to Altoona, and the name of the State itself has been changed to Altoona. All the neighboring towns around about, have been annexed to Altoona city—Hollidaysburg forms the 9th Ward, and Tyrone the 21st. Mudtown has been fenced in and has become another Beulah. The total population of Altoona city is about 500,000, more or (a good deal) less. There are 109 newspapers published in Altoona city—110 of them are daily. Of the former number is the Tribune. It is ably edited and has a large subscription list. There is a paper published in the 9th Ward that's very singular—one-half is printed in the South African language and the other half in the Caffraira. It circulates extensively among the colored people.

There are 149 fire engines in Altoona city, besides a large number of hook and ladder companies. The City has 400 Street Commissioners and 5 Scavengers. Each of the former is required to station himself at a street corner and keep strict watch over that portion of the street that extends to the next corner. Dogs and hogs are not allowed to run at large, but are kept in cellars under the Chinese hotels. Desirable building lots have become very scarce, owing to the rapid growth of the city. Within the past few years we had thought of purchasing, but now fear we shall not be able to get nearer the heart of the city than the 9th Ward. Our present address is No. 1556, Altoona street, City of Altoona, State of Altoona.

LITERARY.—We have received from the publishers, the "Hand-Book of Internal Revenue." It is a pamphlet of some hundred pages, and is an invaluable companion for lawyer, merchant, clerk, manufacturer, and indeed, almost "any other man." It is the latest and most systematic work upon the subject it treats of.

The Speech of Hon. Daniel J. Morrell on the "Financial Condition of the Country," is a well written paper, and enters at considerable length the best manner of putting the public debt of the country in process of liquidation. It deals in frequent allusions to the law givers of antiquity, a subject which is treated with the author's well known familiarity.

OF INTEREST TO EVERYBODY.—Since the advent of the Star Shuttle Sewing Machine in the market, about one year ago, the manufacturers have sold about Fifteen Thousand, and such unprecedented testimonials of their intrinsic worth has prompted them to enlarge the machine, and otherwise improve it, that now the Star Shuttle Sewing Machine stands without a rival. Mr. Wilson deserves great credit for assuming the responsibility in putting a Lock Stitch Shuttle Sewing Machine in the market at such a very low price, in direct competition with all the first-class and high priced machines.

A CAMBRIAN.—Our old Cambria friend, Joseph Gill sends greeting from Earlville, Delaware county, Iowa. He says, "We have very little snow here, but good sleighing all along. When old winter sets in here it keeps right along, not breaking up every few days. Yesterday (Feb. 11th) was the coldest day here since I have been in Iowa. The thermometer was down to 30, yet I was out sleighing all day, and did not think it half so cold as it used to be in Cambria. We want Pendleton for President, and down with the non-taxing bond-holders party." Joe does not forget to send us a greenback.

DEMOREST'S MONTHLY.—Mr. Demorest has won the hearts of the ladies this year, by giving them all sorts of silverware, silk dresses, and other valuable things, for premiums. We have seen some of these "inducements," and find them really beautiful and valuable, like the Magazine itself. One lady has supplied herself with a sewing machine, a parlor organ, and a set of silver spoons and forks, in less than three years. We don't wonder that it is easy to get subscribers to "Demorest." The book is worth the money without any premium. Publication Office, 473 Broadway, N. Y. Send for a circular.

THE ANNUAL ELECTION for Borough officers takes place on Friday. It is to be hoped that good men will be elected, and that the Borough fathers, as well as all other fathers, mothers, sons and daughters, will not forget to patronize the cheap store of V. S. Barker, on Main street.

ST. VALENTINE'S DAY has past and gone, and we trust that a goodly number of our young friends have taken advantage of the occasion to make arraugments for emigrating to the state of matrimony, setting up on their own hook, and buying all their household supplies at Thompson's cheap store.

HOME, Feb. 12, 1868.

MR. JOHNSTON—Dear Sir:—In your last paper I notice a statement purporting to be an inventory of articles remaining at the Poor House after I left it. As this statement is false throughout, and sure to be construed, as it is intended, to my injury, I feel bound, reluctantly, to notice it. I will briefly enumerate a few articles of such a character that all persons will see that they were wilfully omitted, which were there when these men made out that list and are there now: At the barn—a cart, set hay ladders, log sled, chain and spreaders, sleigh bells, wagon whip, rakes, forks, etc. At the house—a small amount of meat, (more than three tons,) a large lot of potatoes in the field, in pits, 11 coal stoves, in use, 2 wood stoves, 8 wooden bedsteads, with good bedding, (does Thomas, who ran this job, know anything of this?) 8 good tables and 1 old one, a bureau, (Mrs. Wesner's, insane,) a churn, a cross-cut saw, a spinning wheel and reel, and lot of rolls, sausage cutter and stuffer, apple parer, 2 coffee mills instead of one, carving knife and fork, iron vise, wood screw, sugar kettle, five gallon brass kettle, chest in office, 3 axes, 1 hatchet, (2 buffalo robes on the list—no such things were there,) kitchen stove furnished with everything, 6 tin buckets, 3 wash bowls, 5 dish pans, 3 coffee pots, 1 coffee pitcher, 2 large tin waiters, 2 stone cream crocks, 1½ dozen stone milk crocks, iron bread pans to bake twenty-three loaves, 1 large and 1 dozen small cake pans, pudding pan, collander, 2 graters, 2 cake cutters, 1 gallon and 1 quart measures, 2½ dozen fruit cans, dippers, lifters, 1 dozen candlesticks, egg beater, an unbroken tea set, 2 sets candle-moulds, flour sifter, large steelyards, counter scales, clothes basket, 200 feet galvanized wire for clothes-line, 30 lbs. white sugar, 1 caddy tea, nearly full, a lot of glassware, a lot of shirts and blouses in office chest, (every inmate had a change of clothing,) 21 iron beds, with bedding, and table ware sufficient for all the inmates. In fact, everything was there when we left necessary to conduct the house as we understood it. Farther, 600 bushels of oats were put in the granary on the first of November, and the stock has been fed since. There was certainly twice as much corn as is put down. If this thing was necessary, it should have been done right, should have been done at once, and I should have had notice. If there is any dispute about my statement, I will show the articles named to any respectable person wishing to see them.

I will only say to Mr. Myers: You have lent yourself to this scheme of defamation; now take your choice of these positions—either these articles were at the house on Jan. 7th or they were not. If they were there why did you omit them?—if they were not there how came they there since? You will explain this, I hope. To the Directors: If you thought it right to buy all McDermitt's property, you should have the manhood to father the act instead of trying to create the impression that a necessity existed for so doing, which was not the case—and this, too, at the expense of the absent, and, as you thought, the defenceless. With respect to this arrangement I will only say that no such thing was ever done in the State before. To you, Mr. Johnston: I appeal to your love of fair play to publish this paper, promising that it will be the last time I will trouble you, and trusting that you will not allow your paper to be made the instrument for the destruction of any man's reputation without giving him a chance to defend himself.

With respect, I remain
Yours, &c.,
JAMES J. KAYLOR.

ARITHMETICAL QUESTION.—A correspondent propounds the following arithmetical problem for the Common School students to solve through the columns of the Freeman:

Two friends, A. and B., residing 3248 miles apart, and wishing to have an interview, started at the same time—A. traveling at the rate of twenty miles per day, and B. at the rate of 10 miles the first day, 10½ the second day, 11 miles the third day, and so on increasing one-half mile each successive day. But when within one day's journey of meeting each other, B. got disabled and had to stop. A. continued on until he reached his friend at his stopping place. Required: The number of miles traveled by each, and how many days from the starting time until they met. PLEBIAN.

JUST SO.—We spend half our lives in making mistakes, and waste the poor remainder in reflecting how easily we might have avoided them. If we buy our books, stationery, clocks, watches, jewelry, fancy goods, &c., from Cham. Roberts, we may be sure we will not have anything to repent of on that score anyhow.

AT IT YET.—Don't think because we said nothing about it last week that Mills & Davis have ceased to offer those astonishing bargains which people have been running after with such great avidity for some time past. They still have plenty of seasonable goods at greatly reduced prices.

DIED.

BUCK.—In Carroll township, on Saturday, 15th inst., Mr. Christian Buck, an old and much esteemed citizen of Cambria county, aged about 70 years.

GOUGHNOUR.—At Conemaugh, on Friday afternoon last, of dropsy, Margaret Goughnour, aged — years.

LOOK OUT FOR BARGAINS!—Intending to retire from the business of hotel keeper at the well known "Mansion House," Summit, Cambria county, I will offer at public vendue, on Monday, March 23d, 1868, and on following days until everything is disposed of, the personal property pertaining to said house, consisting of Beds, Bedding, Tables, Chairs, Washstands, Stoves, Carpets, Oil Cloths, Sofas, Settees, Looking-Glasses, Cupboards, Sideboards, and a general variety of glass and queensware, and many other articles needless to enumerate. Also, 2 Horses, 3 Cows, 1 Hack, 1 Carriage, 2 Buggies, Sleighs, Sleds, Harness, &c.

Sale to commence at 9 o'clock A. M., when terms will be made known.

Feb. 20.-2t. JAS. M. RIFFEL.

TOWN AND COUNTRY PROPERTY FOR SALE.—The subscriber offers for sale his FARM, located at Allegheny township, Cambria county, about one mile west of Loretto. The Farm contains 145 ACRES, 90 Acres of which are cleared, fenced and well cultivated—the balance being heavily timbered. There are erected on the premises a two story Dwelling House, comfortable and commodious, an excellent Bank Barn, and all necessary outbuildings. There is also a large orchard of choice Fruit Trees on the property.

The subscriber also offers sale a Dwelling House and two Lots of Ground located on Main street, in the borough of Loretto.

All the above properties will be sold on fair terms and indisputable titles will be given. Possession given on the 1st of April.
